NAUGATUCK, Conn. --

The Naugatuck community filled the town green on Sunday for a vigil for Billy Smolinski.

Smolinski disappeared on Aug. 24, 2004. Three years later, many questions remain unanswered as to about what happened to the 31-year-old Waterbury man.

"With family and friends gathered together, it gives us the strength to continue on. There is someone out there that knows what happened to Billy and we need them to come forward," Smolinski's mother, Janice, said. Janice Smolinski has been working to convince lawmakers to pass legislation that would improve investigating standards in cases like her son's.
